

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE A-14

WASHINGTON POST
24 May 1985

AROUND THE NATION

'Stealth' Spy Sentenced to Life Term

■ LOS ANGELES—Former aerospace engineer Thomas Patrick Cavanagh, who acknowledged trying to sell "Stealth" bomber secrets to the Soviet Union, was sentenced to life in prison.

U.S. District Court Judge Matthew Byrne Jr. imposed two concurrent life terms after Cavanagh apologized for "my disgraceful actions."

Cavanagh pleaded guilty March 13 to two counts of espionage and said that money was his motivation. He was accused of taking blueprints of the bomber from the Northrop Corp.

STAT